Breaking: Ethics Review Board Attorney Validates Medrano-Guerra Ethics Complaint Against Sukh Kaur

San Antonio, TX — Councilwoman Sukh Kaur has now been officially notified by the City Clerk that her Personal Financial Statements (PFS) were inaccurate—a notice that legally triggers her ability to amend the documents. While the law allows her to “correct” her filings, those statements were originally submitted under oath. Any amendments that reveal omissions or falsehoods don’t erase the lie—they confirm it.

“This isn’t a ‘filing error,’” said Julisa Medrano-Guerra, candidate for District 1. “This is perjury. She swore those statements were truthful, and now she’s scrambling to rewrite the story after she’s been caught. That’s not transparency—it’s cover-up cosplay.”

The Medrano-Guerra campaign has made it clear: if the amended PFSs contradict the originals in any material way, they will pursue criminal perjury charges and are preparing a report for law enforcement review. The accusations of pay-to-play politics, while not explicitly forbidden under today’s laughably weak ethics rules, continue to paint a disturbing picture of a councilmember far too comfortable operating in the shadows.

An independent review has also determined that Councilwoman Kaur did violate the City of San Antonio’s ethics code by instructing her taxpayer-funded Chief of Staff to perform campaign-related duties—a clear misuse of public resources for political gain. Julisa Medrano-Guerra will formally request that this violation be brought to a full hearing before the city’s Ethics Review Board.

“Councilwoman Kaur treating City Hall like it’s her campaign headquarters is not just unethical—it’s outrageous,” said Medrano-Guerra. “Every resident in District 1 should be asking: who is she working for? Because it sure as hell isn’t us.”

“We’re not just raising the bar—we’re yanking it out of Councilwoman Kaur’s hands and locking it in a place where ethics still mean something,” Medrano-Guerra added. “District 1 deserves a leader—not a masterclass in political sleight of hand and plausible deniability.”
